A Notable Citizen of Paw Paw-some

His Characteristics. gentleman whose name appears at the head of this article has long been a notable feature among the business men of this town. He settled here in an early day, opening up a general mercantile business at which he has amassed a comfortable fortune. Just how he acquired his military title it would be difficult to state, but the fact remains that he has been Capt. Ed. for many years and will retain his title until his death, perhaps longer. He is a first class business man and a democrat of democrats. Doesn't talk politics very much, but never fails to vote a straight democratic ticket-never has and never will. He goes down to old Connecticut, his native state, every summer where he fills up on chowder, lobsters and the like, returning in the fall as sleek as a mole and as jolly as the traditional friar. He takes life easy, has already reached a good old age and bids fair to last for many years to come. He is an inveter at a story teller, and nothing delights. ate story teller and nothing delights him more than to have a good listener for his anecdotes, unless it be to purchase a bill of clothing and furnishing goods, which has long been his "exclusive line," at a bankrupt sale and way below cost.—Kalamazoo Telegraph.

You saw him trot at our Fair last fall a race every day, winning them all without making an effort and getting a record of 2:41, and showed, on our track, better than 2:28 in his three-year-old form. I place him, before fall, to trot as fast as any stallion in the State. I will allow him to serve a few mares at $25.00 the season (1890). Mares not proving in foal can be returned free in 1891. After June 15th he will go into training, and you will see him trot in 2:20 or better this year. Will stand in same barn with Bay Wilkes, two men, one triumphant, the other downcast, in the peasant's garden. A few days later Gen. Sheridan dined with Bismarck, who began to talk of the surrender. "That meeting," said the Prussian chancellor, "will be historical. I sent over yesterday and bought those two chairs from the peasant for ten francs apiece; now I have them as mementoes; and I suppose," he added, with a laugh, "the English will go on buying those chairs for years to come." There was a general laugh at this remark, but one officer had more to laugh at than the others, and gave his reasons a song. Will stand in same barn with Bay Wilkes, in Paw Paw, Mich.

One of the annoying things of life is what is known as being "turned around" —that is, confused as to the points of the compass. Probably nearly every one has had something of this experience, but it is much more vexatious in some cases than in others, A friend of the writer thus describes his experience: "The only place where I have been thoroughly and persistently astray in this matter is Poughkeepsie, which I have had occasion to visit a few times in the course of my life. Everybody has heard of the orator who, in an impassioned moment, exclaimed: 'I know no north, no south, exclaimed: 'I know no north, no south, no east, no west.'
